About Your Local Owner

James McArthur

Owner

James McArthur is 51 years old and was born and raised in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Being the second of three children from a single mother, he learned the values of hard work, caring, love, and service to the community at a very young age. He even attended college twice a week while still in high school. James started his own small company, then another, and another, until he came across Bio-One. He instantly fell in love with the motto: "help first, business second." James grew up believing that "we all should be attached to something greater than ourselves." He views Bio-One as his chance to help people, and the community, on what is most likely a day of tragedy. People always ask him, "how can you do something like this every day?" His answer has always remained the same: "If I can shield a family from further exposure by absorbing the trauma and saving the memory of their loved one, I'm going to." It gives him renewed strength and energy to know he's made a difference.
